

Interlapse Reports Continued Growth in Sales and Momentum

Press Release — June 10, 2020

Canadian-based financial technology applications company, Interlapse Technologies Corp. (TSXV: INLA / OTCQB: INLAF), reports continued growth from the Company's virtual currency platform, Coincurve.com.

Since the beta and the official launch of Coincurve on June 19, 2019, the platform has processed over 11,000 transactions and $2.3 million in sales volume.

“The organic growth for Coincurve and the virtual currency market in Canada has been very encouraging. Also, we are poised to launch our platform into international markets alongside increasing virtual currency adoption.” commented Wayne Chen, CEO of Interlapse Technologies Corp.

In May 2020, Coincurve achieved its best performing month from its Canadian operation. As of May 31, 2020, the Company posted monthly average increase of 102% in volume and a 141% increase in revenues since the beta launch of Coincurve.

“Although in early stages of adoption, virtual currency has a great future on the horizon.” Mr. Chen continued. “In addition to being recognized as a store-of-value, virtual currency is a revolutionary technology, which has immense, international-scale business value for tech-driven financial applications.”
